

Dear FCC, I am not sure why you would want to limit what XM Radio broadcasts. We pay a monthly fee for this service, therefore we should hear even more stations than regular radio. I understand the radio corporations are upset at XM because this takes customers away from their market, but XM radio is a better product, much better. America was built on competition and marketing, why take this freedom away? Why listen to regular radio which is horrible. XM can be listened to anywhere in the US and you never lose a station when you leave a metropolitan city, and there's more variety. Any FCC person or ANY person should get this awesome device. Let us make the decision. (democracy) Thanks. Tony Lindau
